The School of Law of the University of Milan-Bicocca offers three courses in English:

- Peacekeeping, International Humanitarian Law and Transitional Justice for students who wish make a career in international organizations;
- Comparative Law of Business Organization for students who would like to join international law or multinational companies;
- Law and Pluralism for students who intend to work for the resolution of conflicts in intercultural contexts (starting from the academic year 2020-21)

The three courses:

- can be chosen by the student in the fourth and fifth year of the single cycle degree course or as free exams for the three-year degree course;
- they are characterized by innovative teaching methods based on interventions of experts from outside the academic world.

Professionalizing initiatives linked to the three courses

The School of Law has a framework agreement with Fordham University of New York aimed at establishing didactic and scientific collaboration as well as exchanging teachers and students within the various activities promoted by the two institutions. To this purpose, financial support is provided to allow participation of at least 3 students of the degree in Law at the Summer School organized by Fordham University every year.

The contact person of the University of Milan-Bicocca for the Summer School is Prof. Danilo Semeghini (daniilo.semeghini@unimib.it).

As for the Peacekeeping course, it is also possible to:

- carry out an internship at the International Center of Transitional Justice (NY, The Hague);
- carry out study trips to the offices of the United Nations and the European Union to learn the decision-making techniques of the main international institutions in the field.
