

Kyriaki Pavlidou
L.LM (UCL); L.LM (AUTH)
Doctoral Researcher, FUB
Freie Universität Berlin, Faculty of Law

Kyriaki Pavlidou is a doctoral researcher at the Free University of Berlin conducting her research on the constitutionalism of social rights in the late austerity years in south Europe as part of the interdisciplinary doctoral and postdoctoral program “Human Rights under Pressure - Law, Politics and Ethics” of the Free University of Berlin and the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. Kyriaki holds an LL.M in Human Rights Law from University College London, an Advanced LL.M in History, Philosophy and Sociology of Law from Aristotle University of Thessaloniki and an LL.B in Law from Democritus University of Thrace. Kyriaki is a licensed practicing attorney and legal counsellor in Greece specialising in labour and social rights. She has previously worked at the European Economic and Social Committee in Brussels and held research assistant positions both at AUTH and UCL. During the year 2016 she conducted research as a Van Calker fellow at the Swiss Institute of Comparative Law in Lausanne. Prior to that, she was awarded the Annual Visiting Research Fellowship from the Lucernaiuris Institute at the University of Lucerne for the year 2015. Kyriaki is an alumna of the 2018 Harvard Law School Institute for Global Law and Policy Scholars Workshop and the SciencesPo Paris Semaine Doctorale Intensive. Kyriaki has undertaken additional study visits at Humboldt University in Berlin, European University Institute, the Venice Academy of Human Rights, Birkbeck University London and the Bahçeşehir University. Kyriaki has given guest lectures and has presented her research in various international settings and she has published in the areas of public law, social rights and religious freedom. Kyriaki’s research interests lie in the fields of philosophy, political theory and comparative constitutional law, while she is particularly interested in feminist legal theory, questions on subjectivity and critical approaches to law from a cross-cultural and transdisciplinary perspective.